RIMA-I Meeting in Houston a Success

RIMA International held their fall working meetings in Houston, Texas, last week. In spite of the World Series taking place at that time, we managed to get a lot of work done and enjoy some networking time as well. We had a great turnout and even welcomed several first-time attendees and guests. Special keynote speaker Dr. Bill Miller presented on the Capstone project he and his students are working on.

At the full Membership meeting on Friday, retiring board members were recognized and presented with framed certificates for their service to the industry and organization. The Alexanders Schwartz Award was also presented to Robert (Bob) Wadsworth for his extensive contributions to the industry (accepted on his behalf by Jonathon Hagarbome of Innovative Energy). Coverttech was the sponsor for our cocktail hour Wednesday evening prior to our group social event/dinner at Sambuca restaurant.

Overall, it was a great meeting and much was accomplished. If you would be interested in participating as our guest at our next meeting April 1-3 in Boston, please contact the RIMA-I office at rima@rima.net. (Check out our Facebook page for photos of the presentations.)
