Stay Informed About 2023 I-RIM Conference on LinkedIn

The 2023 International Reflective Insulation Manufacturers Conference (I-RIM Conference) will be held May 23-25, 2023 in Milan, Italy. This international event is an opportunity for those in the reflective products industries to learn about the latest research, advancements, new technology and uses of reflective products as well as exchange information on how reflectives are being used in various regions around the world.

The conference host, RIMA International, sent out a call for papers/topics in February of this year and several excellent speakers and topics have been selected. A full conference program will be available soon, once all speakers are confirmed. The host hotel is also in the works and will be announced once the final contract is complete.

In the meantime, we wanted to alert you to a new Group within LinkedIn that will allow you a quick place to go to find out about all things I-RIM Conference related. Of course, details will also be on the RIMA International website at www.rimainternational.org and Facebook pages; however, with many being on LinkedIn we wanted to have information readily available there as well. Search for the Group called 2023 I-RIM Conference.

We are just getting started so join the group now and you won't miss a thing. If you have problems or questions, contact us at rima@rima.net. We look forward to seeing you next year in Milan!
